While international legal frameworks established after World War II have long fostered the flow of ideas, goods and services around the world, tomorrow's lawyers will address a multitude of global twenty-first century challenges. Lloyd N. Cutler, counselor to two US presidents and long-time chairman of the board of Salzburg Global Seminar, firmly believed in supporting young lawyers committed to public service. The Salzburg Cutler Fellows Program: The Future of Public and Private International Law helps outstanding law students explore ways to build careers in international law that can help shape a better world, just as Lloyd N. Cutler did.

The Salzburg Cutler Fellows Program is a one-of-a-kind opportunity for graduate students from 14 top US law schools who intend to pursue careers in international law, legal practice and public service. The program identifies rising leaders and fosters lasting collaborative networks within the legal and public service sectors.

The Salzburg Cutler Fellows Program was launched in 2012 to carry forward the work begun by Lloyd N. Cutler of identifying and mentoring promising young lawyers interested in international law. Successful lawyers around the world cite their Salzburg Cutler Fellows experience as influencing their legal philosophy, global network development and public service contributions.

WHY INTERNATIONAL LAW AND PUBLIC SERVICE?

Molly Norburg
Stanford Law

"Pursuing international law in the U.S. occasionally feels isolating, like an exercise in opting out of traditional pathways. This opportunity to build community was a nice antidote to that - a reminder that across the country, brilliant students and scholars are dedicating themselves to issues often overlooked or undervalued in domestic legal spaces."

Antoine De Spiegeleir
Yale Law

"I'm deeply grateful for the opportunity to witness and participate in this intimate yet top-notch conversation and I cannot wait to embark on the rest of my adventure as a new Cutler Fellow. It is obvious to most that a diverse network of international lawyers can have a profound impact on someone's personal and professional growth but it is never so clear as when you effectively get the chance to meet and exchange with other students, professors, and practitioners as in the context of the Cutler Fellowship program."

Donna Faye Imadi
UVA Law

"I am enthused to be a part of a community dedicated to scholarship and advancement of democracy, freedom, and a rules-based order. Especially in this precarious moment in global history, calling upon us to be innovative, creative, and analytical in our approach toward the future. I am looking forward to working with my colleagues on our scholarship. And moreover, to nurturing lifelong friendships through shared passion of advancing justice and peace."

PROGRAM FORMAT

In advance of the program's kick-off, each student prepares a research paper on a leading issue in public or private international law. Students then gather Thursday evening for a welcome dinner and then meet over two intensive days in Washington, DC. Top law faculty and peers from 14 leading institutions review each paper in a workshop setting and offer advice on improving arguments and moving papers toward publication. Lawyers and other mentors in public service meet with Fellows to discuss traditional and non-traditional pathways into careers in international law and public service. Fellows also enjoy keynote addresses by renowned public servants - past speakers include South African Justice Richard Goldstone, Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund, Kristalina Georgieva, former director of the CIA and FBI, Judge William Webster.

THE SALZBURG GLOBAL NETWORK

Salzburg Global Seminar fosters lasting networks and partnerships for creative, just and sustainable change. In addition to joining the 500-strong Salzburg Cutler Fellows network, Fellows will also be a part of the Salzburg Global Fellowship.
